CHITA - TOKIO PARLEYS WILL BE CENTERED ON FISHERIES

Japanese Ammunition At Vladivostok Also Issue

MAY GO INTO SEA

Nikolaivsk Question Sure To Be Raised, Belief

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 29.—It is reported semi-officially that the Russo-Japanese conference at Changchun will be concerned mainly with reaching an understanding regarding the fishery rights which the Japanese acquired along the Siberian coast, the disposal of the vast quantities of Japanese ammunition stored in Vladivostok and the Nikolaievsk massacre.

The first question is important through the possibility of Reds taking over the control of Vladivostok after Japanese evacuation and not realising that the fishery rights have been officially alienated. As regards the ammunition it appears that both Chita and Vladivostok are anxious to secure it while the Japanese do not desire to raise possible friction by selling to either party.

In this connection some Japanese papers advocate dumping the lot into the sea. Finally the Nikolaievsk question has been pending so long that delay beyond evacuation might consign the matter to perpetuity. Another question likely to come up is the navigation of the Amur. As the Chinese are vitally interested in it, it is thought probable that China might be invited to participate in the discussions on it while other questions may arise which cannot be settled without Chinese participation. No mention has been made of Vladivostok participating in the conference but that center may yet ask permission to send delegates as Chita will be represented.

Great Britain To Send Big Scientific Expedition To Tibet

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 21.—Great Britain intends to make a thorough study of the little known land of Tibet. A mission composed of some of England's ablest explorers, scientists, missionaries and ethnologists soon will leave London for the city of Lhasa. The mission will proceed under the auspices of the International Buddhist Union representing all schools of Buddhism, including the Buddhist Society of the United States.

The mission will make a closer investigation of the Tibetan people, their customs, religion and language, than has yet been possible, together with a study of rare books and manuscripts known to exist in the monastic libraries. These are expected to prove of the greatest value, not only to Buddhist scholarship and to the study of comparative religion, but to fill many gaps that at the present exist in the world's knowledge of the early history of a country which to the present day is veiled in mystery.

Wu And Tsao Kun To Discuss Cabinet

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 29.—According to Chinese reports General Wu Pei-fu will leave Loyang today for Paotingfu in order to discuss the Cabinet question with General Tsao Kun.

Peking, August 29.—An agreement has been reached between the Chisotungpu and General Wu Pei-fu whereby the latter completely restores the control of the Peking-Hankow Railway. The office which General Wu Pei-fu established at Hankow for the collection of revenue has been abolished and it is confidently predicted that there will be no further interference with revenues. Troop movements and the shortage of rolling-stock, however, are still proving hindrances to traffic.

DOG DAYS STUFF

By Wesla

NOW THAT the baseball season is drawing to a close why shouldn't those of us who have been enjoying a fairly good brand of baseball all summer, at about fifteen cents (small money, Mexican) per game, begin to think of some method suitably to express our appreciation to the management and players who have made this entertainment possible?

Messrs. McIntyre, Smith, Gallop and Hopkins, president, secretary, manager and captain, respectively, of the team, together with the players, have made a great many sacrifices of time and effort to give us baseball, and the biggest reason why we should do something to show our appreciation is the fact that they neither ask nor expect us to do so. In fact, for my temerity in even making the suggestion, I fully expect Herby Gallop will knock my block off the next time he sees me.

This has been an exceptionally good season from every standpoint. Manager Gallop has arranged better opposition, and more of it, than ever before in the team's history, a statement that will be endorsed by any of the ol' timers who have followed the game in Shanghai.

This has taken a raft of work and oodles of time. Baseball games do not "just happen." On the contrary they are brought about by endless negotiating and palavering, all at a cost of time and energy undreamed of by the average customer at the ball park. Sometimes, as happened once this summer, a series of games is cancelled after all arrangements are completed and advertisements printed, thus making it necessary for the manager to do the work all over again. Many a night this summer when going home from my work at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning I have seen Holby beating it to the telegraph or cable office with a sheaf of messages, all marked urgent, in his hand.

ARRANGING a series of baseball games, especially with some of these Japanese teams, is like catching a greased pig. Now you have him and now he's loose again. It's a good deal like an experience Bill Klem had one time while umpiring a game at St. Louis. Bill was behind the plate, and when a runner came tearing in from third the St. Louis catcher, taking a throw from center, tagged him and Bill yelled "Out!" An instant later, when the dust cloud had cleared away Bill saw a ball on the ground, and thinking it had popped out of the catcher's hands he changed his decision and yelled "Safe!" A second later the back stopper scrambled to his feet and Bill saw the ball was tightly clutched in his meat hook, so he switched the decision again, and yelled "Out!" The extra ball, which had been knocked foul on the previous pitch, had been retrieved and tossed into the park from outside by the St. Louis equivalent of a foul coolie, and had rolled up to the plate and stopped just as the runner hit the dirt for home.

Well, that's a good deal like some of these series of games that Holby arranges. He gets them all fixed, and then something busts and he has it all to do over again, which means a slough of work and worry.

As to the players, they, too, have had to neglect their work, at times, in order to be at the ball park to play. At other times they have reported when ill, and have struggled through games when they should have been in a hospital. Only yesterday Freddy Bills was so sick with fever that he could hardly navigate, and yet, not a peep of complaint!

AND so, considering all these things, the fans here should do something of a concrete nature to show the appreciation which all feel for the many hours of pleasant entertainment the boys have given us this summer.

It isn't like at home, where a handy answer to any such proposal as this could be met with: "They get paid for what they do—we should worry about adding to their already swollen emolument!"

Any suggestions?

FRANK F. BOWE GETS SENTENCE OF TWO YEARS

Accused In Forgery Case Is Found Guilty In Ruling By Judge Lobingier

In a ruling that was given yesterday in the United States Court for China by Judge C. S. Lobingier Frank F. Bowe was adjudged guilty of charges of forgery on which he has been on trial, and a sentence of two years imprisonment was imposed by the court. Following announcement of the decision Judge C. S. Franklin, who defended Bowe, presented a motion for a new trial.

THE RULING

The text of Judge Lobingier's decision follows:

After the denial of his motion to dismiss, defendant took the stand in his own behalf. He admitted the visit of Moench and Jewell to his room but stated that it was purely social and denied that any papers had been signed. Two of his employees, a Chino-Portuguese clerk, aged twenty, named Cruz, and a Korean, claim to have been working there when two men came whom they describe with rather suspicious similarity and the employees, who were meanwhile occupied, did not notice either of the men sign a paper. But there is nothing to show that this was on the same date to which Moench refers and the accused himself does not state that Jewell never came to the room but once. Besides Moench expressly says (p. 10) that on the night he was present "there were only Mr. Jewell, Mr. Bowe and myself."

THE TWO CONTRACTS

Defendant's main reliance, however, is upon the testimony of Cruz to the effect that the contracts in question were received by mail from Japan in an envelope which he opened as accused was then in jail. He states that he did not read the contracts—merely glanced at them—but that he remembers the signatures thereon of Mandeville and Kelly. If this testimony is true that of Moench cannot be

BOYD TELLS HIS STORY OF COPPER DEAL IN U.S. COURT

Denied Any Intention To Defraud Hunan Mint

CASE ENDS TODAY

Final Arguments To Be Heard This Morning By Judge Lobingier

Final arguments are to be presented in the United States Court for China this morning in the case of Ralph S. Boyd who has been on trial before Judge Lobingier on charges of having obtained Tls. 30,000 by false pretenses from General Chang at a time when General Chang was director of the Hunan Provincial Mint.

The basis of the Government's case against Boyd is that he received from General Chang the sum of Tls. 30,000 after agreeing to make certain shipments of copper to the Hunan mint at a time when he neither had the copper to ship nor means to obtain it.

At yesterday's session of the court three witnesses for the defense were heard, including Boyd himself who gave his version of the deal for the copper. Testimony again was interrupted by frequent clashes between Mr. Leonard C. Husar, United States District Attorney, conducting the prosecution, and Mr. R. S. Haskell who is appearing for the defendant.

TELLS OF BOOKS

Mr. R. D. Ghyolson, accountant of R. S. Boyd and Company, was the first witness called yesterday morning. Practically the first question asked by Mr. Leonard G. Husar, United States District Attorney, caused an argument between counsel for the prosecution and Mr. R. S. Haskell, counsel for Boyd.

"What condition were the books in when you took them over?" Mr. Husar asked.

Mr. Haskell objected.

"The accused is charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, of obtaining a large amount of money for copper, which it is alleged he did not have," said Judge Lobingier. "I suppose the fact that he did not have the copper justifies the question. Suppose the financial condition of the company was such that he could not get the copper as he knew he did not have the money?"

"His books may not have been left in order but that would prove nothing," Mr. Haskell asserted.

Judge Lobingier said it seemed to him that the state of the books was evidence of the state of the company and finally allowed the question.

NO RECEIPTS

The witness then said that the books showed only disbursements, no receipts. The books, he said, were in Boyd's hands as far as he knew. The books commenced at the beginning of the year, he said, and did not show the receipt of Tls. 30,000. When Dr. Massey resigned from the directorship he had a conversation with Boyd. Boyd had a project in hand that called for taking over certain ships. Boyd asked him to resign from his position and become a director. He said that he had wired the director of the Hunan Mint that the shipment of copper had gone forward and that the cable had put him in an embarrassing position as the copper had not gone forward, as

Hospitals In China Have Fine Lot Of Bare Walls

By Elsie McCormick

Dear Mr. Editor: This is just to let you know that we are in town again. We realise that you would never draw the inference by watching our desk, because we go to the office about as often as Cleopatra went to choir practice. In fact, we haven't been around steadily for a long time. There are a good many reasons for it.

In the first place, we thought we would add a little variety to our life by making the rounds of the different hospitals in town. We became acquainted with simple and severe forms of room decoration suggesting a home interior of the Post-Installment-Man Period—that is, after an installment man's visit to a house where three payments are due. We have had rooms that were furnished tastefully with a coat of Ningpo varnish and a bottle of capsules. There weren't even any cracks in the walls to count. We used to amuse ourself by figuring out the design that might have been in the wall-paper if there had been any wall-paper. The rest of the time we occupied ourself by getting hay-fever from the baskets of flowers that were sent us.

Yes, it was a great life. The only trouble was that they wouldn't give us anything to eat except a thermometer. There ought to be more ways to add seasoning to a thermometer. A dash of catsup or soybean oil or vanilla sauce would help a great deal. Or they might try serving it more attractively on a plate of water-cress, for instance, or else on a dish of candied rosettes. The only real meal we had was a plate of ice-cream intended for the room next door and brought to us by mistake.

CLASSIFIED CALLERS

Hospital callers are divided into two classes—those who tell a patient how well he's looking and those who tell him how much he's changed. After carefully considering both kinds, we are still unable to choose the winning ticket. When somebody tells him he looks perfectly fit and hasn't any right to be in a hospital, he feels that the person is lacking in sympathy; when somebody puts on the mask of the chief mourner and remarks that he certainly does look terrible, he considers requesting his consulate to repeal the laws against homicide. If a caller puts on a death-bed demeanor, the patient sighs deeply and reaches for a lily; if the caller bursts in on a whirlwind of jocosity, the patient is likely to turn reproachful eyes on him and wonder how he could be so heartless. There is only one thing as bad as being in a hospital and that is having to visit somebody there.

Well, anyway, we learned a little zoology during our absence. We used to believe that pelicans had the largest bills in the world, but we have discovered that compared to a Shanghai pharmacy, a pelican hasn't even a beak.

EXITING ANNOYANCES

After having registered at various well-known hospitals and ridden in all our leading ambulances, we were informed that we would have to go home. Since then we have been very busy trying to pack bulky brass gods so that the customs men would mistake them for laundry and wondering if we can convince the authorities that three Mandarin skirts, an embroidered lampshade, and a suit of Chinese armor are authentic parts of our personal wardrobe. We have also been occupied in trying to dodge friends who begin, 'I wonder if you could take a little something in to a friend of mine in San Francisco. You can put it in your suitcase and tell them that it's medicine.' At this point we always remark that though we'd like to be obliging, we don't want to be mistaken for Mrs. Johnnie Walker and besides, since most of the bootleggers now rent offices and issue business cards, the friend in San Francisco is probably well taken care of.

By the way, Mr. Editor, what is this we hear about a lady writing to THE CHINA PRESS and accusing it of publishing immoral pictures? We understand the trouble started over a cut of a nurse who valued two stolen kisses at $12,500 each. We don't know just why the lady objected to that, unless she thought the nurse valued them too low and thus tended to cheapen the feminine sex.

Since then, we have looked feverishly over the files to find the rest of the immoral pictures, but all we managed to come across was a view of a stripped battleship.

Tell the staff that someday we might drop into the office and shake for tea. In the meantime, we remain,

Yours optimistically,

THE LADY FEATURE WRITER.

P. S. Thanks for the new desk. Sorry we don't need it now.

HEAR ARGUMENT ON MOTION FOR ALIMONY TODAY

Mr. Schuhl Makes Application On Behalf Of Mrs. Swinehart

Argument will be heard by Judge Lobingier in the United States Court this morning on an application for alimony made by Mr. F. J. Schuhl on behalf of Mrs. Harriet Howard Swinehart. Mr. Schuhl has filed a suit for separate maintenance on Mrs. Swinehart's behalf.

The application for alimony was made before Judge Lobingier yesterday and the court ruled to hear argument this morning when the case of Swinehart v. Swinehart, Moore, Mosonhart and Company also comes up for hearing. In this latter action Mr. Swinehart seeks recovery of G.$4,500 from his wife, Mr. P. R. Moore and the corporation formed by them for the manufacture and export of ladies' silk underwear.

The alimony motion was opposed on behalf of Mr. Swinehart by Mr. Paul F. Faison.

SHIPS WARNED NEW TYPHOON IS SWEEPING IN FROM SEA

Siccawei Issues Notice At 9 o'clock Of Storm's Movement

COAST MENACED

Gale Expected To Strike Between Wenchow And Mouth Of Yangtsze

Urgent warning of the approaching typhoon was sent out by Siccawei Observatory at 9 o'clock last night.

The effects of the storm might be felt along the coast and here today, or might even begin during the night, the message stated.

At the time the warning signal was given the typhoon had just reached the Eastern Sea, near Naha, and was travelling in a Northwesterly direction. It was expected to strike the coast between Wenchow and the mouth of the Yangtsze.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, August 29.—The fact is gradually coming to light that the typhoon which on the 23rd instant swept over the north-eastern districts of Japan has caused disastrous damage on the sea. The s.s. Kibi Maru (4,700 tons) of the Toyosaki Shipping Company at Kobe, on her way back from Hokkaido with a cargo of timber was sunk off the Cape of Daito, Chiba Prefecture, and her whole crew, over 30 in number, are missing.

Another cargo-boat, the Asaki Maru (3,500 tons), which was also bound for Kobe from Hokkaido, appears to have met with the same fate as the Kibi Maru, together with over 40 sailors, off the Cape of Daito. Bodies of men thought to have been sailors are being washed ashore. Several steamers are still missing.

and we must determine which is credible. Moench is the older, made a better appearance on the stand, and holds a more responsible position. His manner of testifying carried the marks of truthfulness. If his narrative is not true it is a base fabrication. He could not have been merely mistaken. Cruz on the other hand might easily have been so. He merely glanced at the contracts. He remembers no other detail. Seeing them later he may have thought they were signed when he first saw them. At any rate his misrepresentation, if such it be, was for the purpose of helping his friend and former employer in distress. Moench could have had no such purpose. If he prevaricated it was to secure the conviction of an innocent man. The only motive for such an atrocity, which defendant suggests, is that Moench did not like him. Moench was questioned about this on cross-examition and denied any such feeling. He was not, however, asked about any of the details to which the accused later testifies. These appear like afterthoughts.

OTHER POINTS

Again, if Moench was so hostile as defendant claims, why should the former make a purely social call upon him and be served with drinks as he testifies? There are other circumstances, unimportant if themselves, which become highly significant in the light of Moench's testimony and which tend strongly to corroborate him. If these contracts were, as they purport to be, signed by Mandeville in New Jersey, they would naturally have been prepared here. A theory that they were prepared in Shanghai would be inconsistent with the defense. But we agree with the District Attorney that such documents, if prepared in the United States, would not contain as they do the spellings "cheques" and "cancell," or the expression "Tls. 100." These features indicate that the documents were prepared in Shanghai. They are entirely consistent with Moench's version and entirely inconsistent with that of Cruz. Much the same may be said of the unsuccessful attempts to locate the companies issuing these policies. If, as appears, they are fictitious, they could have issued no such contracts. The latter must likewise be bogus and Moench's testimony alone explains them.

Defendant claims that Mandeville is a real person, "25 to 30 years of age," living in New Jersey. If such be the case his testimony is immensely important to the accused. For that reason we offered to continue the case for such a time as would enable Mandeville's deposition to be taken. Defendant, however, through his counsel expressed a desire to submit the case on the evidence just reviewed and that evidence we must find insufficient to overcome the showing made by the prosecution.

On the evidence before us, therefore, we find the accused guilty of the offense charged in the information the penalty for which is imprisonment "for not less than one year nor more than ten years."

The accused is, accordingly, sentenced to imprisonment for a term of two years, to run from June 3, 1922, the date of his incarceration, the balance of which shall be served in Bilibid Prison, territory of the Philippines, and to pay the costs of this prosecution.

AWAY SAD WORLD!

Pet Peeve Editor, The China Press

Sir.—A quiverish sensation of noxious delight shot through my pent-up heart at the prospect of venting my disdainful wrath against humanity at large including myself, even for a temporary forgetfulness of self and the world, when I saw this morning the Pet Peeve letter competition offered in your most esteemed paper.

My age?—40 next November. A bachelor with no family connection, wandering from place to place. Rich enough to keep up a simple life of frugality with no assiduous work of what is called profession or trade; and poor enough to be free from any earthly temptation of involving myself in what is called ambition. Love forlorn?—Would that I were fortunate to embitter my life in that intricate phenomenon of unreturned love, like a worthy man of the world! My color?—yellow, but not on account of jealousy or invalidism; living just now in the midst of yellow, black, white and half-colored human beings in Shanghai.

"Cut your nonsense short! or you shall find yourself damned to Hell," cries one of your readers. And I should be heartily thankful if he would keep his word when I disregard his timely warning. Hell is as good as Paradise for me, so long as both of them are to be reserved for the bodiless relics of humanity. The only thing I ever covet is void and nonentity: that is, to do away with anything pertaining to the humbug called man.

Whence such antipathy? You might call it scepticism if you meant by it all human races upon this earth were too self-centered to have an interest in others. Love of money, love of honor, love of power, love of a lover, a friend, a husband, a wife, a father, a mother, a son, a daughter, love of a country or a race and even love of humanity itself are all in the same category of selfishness. Kingdom of Absolute Love is an ephemeral Utopia romanticised two centuries ago. Look straight into your bare hearts, my dear readers, and each one of you will discover to his astonishment a hankering desire for some kind of reward in the hidden recess of his innermost heart. Action and reaction is the eternal law of Universe.

Man against man, nation against nation, race against race: tooth for tooth, eye for eye! That's an undeniable fact lurking at the bottom of every human phase. Hence the strife among the Christians who are supposed to love others as themselves! How can they dare to insult Judas? All of us are so many Judases in some way or other. Upon wrath is a hundred times more honest than underhand ostentation of mean courtesy.

Happy is the man who is able to live a life of peace in some remote, untrodden land of wilderness. My only hope lies in the attainment of a solitary life in some uninhabited island surrounded by sailless seas like Robinson Crusoe with his faithful servant Friday. I am etc.,

PEEVED? OH, NO!

Pet Peeve Editor, The China Press

Sir: Have I a "peeve?" Yes, Sir—and a tidy-sized one at that. I have callouses on my hands, am becoming knock-kneed and splay-footed, my erstwhile sunny and angelic disposition is in a fair way to getting warped and soured. The reason? Simply because, not being able to run to a Tin Lizzie—even a second-hand one—I am a Season Ticket Holder in our esteemed Tramway Service.

I am rapidly losing whatever rudiments of courtesy I ever possessed where the fair sex are concerned. When I am so fortunate as to obtain a seat I inwardly shudder at the idea of giving it up to a lady who a furtive glance assures me is physically better qualified than myself to stand up under the buffeting process when passengers are entering and leaving the car, to endure the ear-piercing blasts of the grimy conductors. At such times I have developed the habit of resolutely keeping my eyes glued to paper or book—but always have the uncomfortable feeling that the fair ones eye me malevolently and size me up for a pretty cheap sort of article. Callouses by "reverting to type" (if Darwin is correct), strap-hanging: sagging cartilages owing to the annoying manner the cars have (the sunken tracks I suppose) of swaying to and fro, up and down, as they switch-back their ponderous way from end to end of the various routes.

For two hours each day (Sunday excepted) do I sit cheek by jowl with gentlemen whose pedigrees it would tax the powers of the greatest expert in racial origins to determine—in some instances—with Chinese, swaggering and smelling of garlic; complacent Japanese; jocular Indians. Twelve to fourteen hours a week! I have at times wondered where the conductors obtain their footgear from—those thick-soled, uncleaned (presumably to match the rest of their raiment) examples of the shoemaker's art which they, I verily believe, take a subtle delight in "accidentally" implanting upon the newly-whitened or carefully polished brown or black shoes which we unfortunate strap-hangers are by force of circumstance obliged to deposit in the "fairway." Stand on the platform and you risk unsightly daubs of black grease from the brake. Stand on the footboard and you risk getting "pinched." Stand inside, and you are buffeted about like a shuttlecock. Six dollars a month for such! But rickshas are unsafe nowadays, 'tis too hot to walk, motor cars are out of the question—the solution is more cars, bigger cars, with a correlative service of motor-buses. Let the company forget "divvies" for a bit, and think a bit more of the comfort of such unlucky individuals as myself. Peeved? Oh, no—not really. I'm a philosopher.

PRIZES AWARDED TO STUDENTS AT SLOYD'S SCHOOL

Successful Manual Training Pupils Receive Rewards For Work

The first annual prize giving of the Shanghai Public Manual Sloyd School took place yesterday afternoon at its headquarters, 7A Ningpo Road. Judge Peter Grain, who kindly gave away the prizes, voiced the thoughts of the many visitors who were present. He said that he was very impressed with the excellence of all the work and congratulated Captain Hansen upon the results he had produced. He looked forward to the time when the school would have greater facilities for the carrying on of a training that was as interesting as it was instructive.

BOYD ON STAND TELLS STORY OF DEAL IN COPPER

Final Arguments In Case To Be Made In U.S. Court Thi. Morning

he found out later. He left the company the following month, he said.

Cross-examined witness said there were no bank record books but that the company's books showed Boyd had drawn Tls. 1,000 at one time.

"Do you remember asking Boyd in what account to put the Tls. 30,000?" Mr. Haskell asked.

"Boyd gave me a written list of the money and deposits to be made in the ledger," he replied.

The witness testified that Boyd told him that another accountant who had kept the books became confused. He had drawn up a receipt form and had them printed, he said, because there were no receipts in the office except those Boyd pencilled himself.

He began to lose confidence in Boyd, he said, as he had so many plans and schemes and was trying to work on such a big scale that he didn't know exactly what his position was. When he had been engaged Boyd told him that he had had a hard time but had managed to pull through. Boyd still owed him money.

United States Marshal Thurston E. Porter was the next witness called. He testified that Boyd had been arrested on a warrant on July 1 after a search for ten days, and then described the sensational jail break made by Boyd and Lightner when they escaped from the American jail on July 16 by going through a hole in the roof and 3 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Charles Ludwig, jailer in the American jail, also testified as to the details of the escape, and Detective Sergeant Conduit testified concerning the rearrest of Boyd on the boat on the Pootung side, closing the case for the prosecution.

OPEN CASE FOR DEFENSE

Mr. Haskell, in opening the case for the defense, said that Boyd would deny that he had made any statement to General Chang that he owned copper. He would show, he said, that he had an option on the copper to be sold to General Chang. The defense would prove, he said, that the entire transaction was arranged by the man who was in charge of the Chinese affairs of the company, by name Tzau, who obtained an option for the copper and Boyd believed, and still believes, that he had 20,000 piculs of copper available for sale to the Hunan mint.

In support of his contract Tls. 30,000 was deposited with R. S. Boyd and Company, he said, the title remaining with the Hunan Mint. The defense would also show, Mr. Haskell declared, that the organisation of the company and the twenty million dollar schemes were all bona fide and that there was no attempt at an organisation to defraud Chinese. The whole thing, he explained, was an ordinary transaction and the reason it fell through was because of the military troubles at Changsha. Had it not been for the fighting and disorganisation of traffic, he said, a large American bank would have financed the deal. No American bank would finance the deal however, and a Chinese bank undertook the deal. The firm holding the copper, he said, refused to deal with the Chinese bank because they heard they were in difficulties.

HAD COPPER AT HANKOW

The defense would also show, Mr. Haskell asserted, that Boyd had the copper. Concerning the telegram alleged to have been sent to General Chang saying the copper had been shipped to Changsha Mr. Haskell said the defense would show that it had not been authorised by Boyd. It was not signed by Boyd, he said, and the defense would show that Boyd had the copper at Hankow and there was no need of such a telegram.

The first witness called by the defense was Tsen Tsu-shu, a native of Hunan, who said he had first met Boyd last February and later had a deal with him in copper. General Chang came to him and told him that Boyd wanted to buy copper, he said, and he told him he could get the copper if a Japanese bank would undertake to finance the deal. He understood the copper was wanted for shipment to Changsha.

At a meeting at the See Yee company the matter was discussed between Tzau, Chinese manager for R. S. Boyd and Company, Boyd and General Chang. General Chang came first and telephoned to Boyd, who brought a sample copper ingot with him when he came, the witness said. A price of Tls. 29 per picul was agreed upon.

The broker who negotiated the sale of the copper said he was present when the contract was completed. General Chang, he said, asked Boyd when the copper would be delivered and where he would get it. When these questions were asked by General Chang the witness said Tzau put him out as he did not want him to get the commission. The witness said he was sure Boyd could get the copper. He did not know whether Boyd had made arrangements to get it or not, he said.

BOYD TAKES STAND

Boyd next took the stand in his own defense. He said he was 30 years old and had been in Shanghai since October 1920. The object of R. S. Boyd and Company, he said, was to enter the export and import and shipping

His associates in the company, Boyd said, were Tzau, an American, and another Chinese. The firm started business in November 1921. When the company started he had a written promise from Tzau to put in $60,000 and $40,000 later. At the time this promise was made Boyd said Tzau had $70,000 in a Chinese bank. Tzau first turned over $10,000 to the company, Boyd said, and promised to turn over the remaining $60,000 before December.

Then the Shanghai and Hainan bank went into bankruptcy, Boyd said, and Tzau lost all his money. Boyd said he had offices in the Glen Line building and was depending on Tzau's money, as well as other funds Tzau had promised to get in Peking after the Chinese New Year.

"When the Chinese bank went broke it put us in a very awkward position," Boyd testified. "We believed that we had very good prospects and so carried on. We managed to sell some of our shares from time to time. At the time of the deal in copper everything looked very promising. The Mint asked us to quote on 100,000 ounces of silver every month and told us that if we got it successfully they promised us large orders for copper.

HIS STORY OF DEAL

"We got an order for 20,000 piculs of copper and an option on the copper. We had four foreign members on our staff and six to eight Chinese. I first heard of the copper business on February 10 through the last witness, the Chinese broker. He told me and Tzau that the Hunan Mint wanted copper and was prepared to give security. Tzau made inquiries to see how much copper was in Shanghai and secured an option on 100,000 piculs. The last I heard of Tzau he was in Hankow. I have tried to get in touch with him but have been unsuccessful."

Mr. Husar objected to Boyd telling what Tzau had told him on the grounds that it was hearsay and not admissable as evidence.

Mr. Haskell asserted that the prosecution contended that Boyd did not own the copper and that the mint (General Chang) had deposited Tls. 30,000 with Boyd.

Mr. Husar declared the prosecution did not allege the money had been deposited, and that the receipt does not show it was deposited.

Mr. Haskell insisted that the case for the prosecution is that Boyd and Company represented that they owned the copper and on that representation Tls. 30,000 was deposited. As opposed to that, Mr. Haskell said, the defense's case was that Boyd never said he owned the copper and was ready to deliver in terms of the contract.

QUESTION OF THE OPTION

Judge Lobingier interrupted. "You claim that the option has something to say about this?"

Mr. Haskell: "Tzau went to get the price which was lower than the price we sold to the complaining witness and does not state for how long a period we had to take up. Basing our whole case upon that representation that Tzau made to Boyd and Boyd went to General Chang and said "We have the copper and we can deliver it."

Judge Lobingier asked why the option had not been produced in evidence and Mr. Haskell said he had searched the offices but could not find it.

Boyd continued in his testimony:

"Tzau told me that he had secured an option on 20,000 piculs for one week at Tls. 28.60 per picul. He showed me a Chinese paper. The next he told me was that he was going to see the buyer who arranged to buy it at Tls. 32 a picul. I met General Chang at that time. Tzau asked me to bring along the sample that he had left in the office. The price sold was eventually fixed at Tls. 31. General Chang came four or five times to our offices. We were in a position to finance the transaction. We had a Chinese guarantee to the extent of Tls. 150,000 and arrangements were being made with the Park-Union Bank to assist The Park-Union Bank finally declined to do the business as conditions were so unsettled.

"The Shanghai Co-operative Bank eventually agreed to give us the price of 20,000 picul at Tls. 26.60 and said they would send a representative to Changsha to collect the money from the Mint. On February 21 we gave the native order to the copper merchant and he brought it back saying that the bank was in difficulties and asked for another native order. We told General Chang that we had goods in Shanghai and that we had chartered a steamer. I did not at any time say I owned this copper. I was never asked whether I owned copper. It was a case where we were buying goods in the market and selling it to others. They asked me whether I could make the shipment to the mint of the first block of 5,000 piculs by the twenty-first. I had 5,000 piculs for shipment. We arranged to take the copper from lighters on Soochow creek. The lighters were there the whole day. This copper was never shipped. The copper which I had the option on was the copper at Yangtzsepoo and also at Soochow creek in godowns.

I offered to show the copper to General Chang at the time when the contract was made. A couple of days later General Chang came to the offices and gave us a native order. We refused to accept it until we went to the bank. The bank said General Chang did not have sufficient funds and then General Chang went to the bank and fixed matters up.

NAVY LEAGUE'S PROPERTY SELLS FOR TLS. 60,000

It is reported that negotiations have been completed for the sale of the Navy League recreation ground at the figure of Tls. 60,000, which sum is to be invested pending plans for the establishment of a permanent Union Jack Club for Shanghai.

The land in question was acquired some 20 years ago for the purpose of providing a sports ground for British sailors at a price of Tls. 16,000. Sale of the property was held up for some time owing to a dispute over right of way, the establishment of which, incidentally, has increased the value of the land nearly four times.

Kokuminto Party Dissolution To Have Big Affect In Japan

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, August 29.—The dissolution of the Kokuminto Party will, it is generally observed, fairly affect the political world in Japan. In this connection, Mr. Inugai, President of the Party, addressing its general meeting yesterday afternoon, made the following statement:

"The reason we are about to dissolve our party voluntarily is twofold. In the first place we have taken into consideration the progress and change of the times. Political parties in their old forms have hitherto had a sort of a rampart and we do not consider it any longer necessary to keep it. We have therefore made up our mind to do away with such a rampart with the object of casting in our lot with scholars, business men, laborers and others of the same views that we hold.

"It will thus be seen that the object of the dissolution of our Party is to give an opportunity to these persons to join our new Party. In the second place, the enforcement of universal suffrage is near at hand, and then those who have up to the present been placed outside the political sphere will be put within it. Such being the case it is most essential to meet together with such people and to deliberate with them upon state affairs.

"Our enthusiasm and efforts will, I feel convinced, result in the organisation of a big political body in a few years. In this sense it may fairly be said that the dissolution of our Party is a preparatory step towards the formation of a big national union. The reason of the dissolution of the Party is rather simple but it is very significant. Despite my advanced age I am determined to do my best on behalf of the country and the people as well as for the sake of my principles.

SHANGHAI BEATS MEIJI ON SERIES; TAKES FINAL GAME BY SCORE OF 7 RUNS TO 2

Take Two Cups From Visitors' Supporters; Likely Now To Tour Japan

The Shanghai baseball nine won a brace of cups, a fine baseball game and a series with the Meiji University team yesterday afternoon on the local lot when John Scott and his gang overcame an early 2-0 lead, and finished out after eight and one half innings play with a score of 7-2 in their favor. The game and the series most likely will cinch the tour of Japan this fall for the local nine. The visiting collegians had concentrated against Shanghai and after a good tussle they lost the series by one game to two. The Nipponese also were defeated two straight by Fort Mills. Considering that Meiji is the third best baseball university in Japan and this year's collegiate champions it is certain that Shanghai will be invited to meet other strong university nines, including Waseda and Keio, as well as semi-professional teams, such as the Osaka Diamonds and the Osaka Mainichi nines.

Shanghai yesterday started slowly. They went hitless and runless off Watanabe's big league twirling for four innings, while the visitors were touching up Scott for seven small-time bingles which netted two runs. Shanghai came from behind, commencing with Thatch's timely triple in the fifth, and his high class base running homeward, which brought the local's first run in on a daring sliding chance on Sammy Woods' strikeout. The local nine tied and passed the Japanese score in the seventh and when Meiji blew up in the eighth took the five run lead which held throughout.

The game was full of close interest for the fan and the player alike. Almost all of the Japanese hits were scratchy things, but with clever sacrificing and the usual baseball breaks they developed into runs. With but one or two exceptions the breadth of a hair might have choked them off. Not one safety went for more than a single base. They were hitting Scott in the first half of the game, and were getting away with it on lucky placing of ordinary grounders.

Hayashi slipped one through Scott in the second and was bunted along to second. Tateya put another past Scott to center scoring Hayashi and taking second on the throw-in. A succeeding hit to short which Bills couldn't handle fast enough tallied Tateya. Inaba followed with a single through Holliday at third, and Kihara walked, but Tanizawa grounded to Holliday and forced Inaba at third and the side was retired. Only two other Japanese reached second after that second inning but they died where they were.

Shanghai got well into the game in the seventh with three real hits which netted two runs, and brought the score to 3-2 in favor of Gallop's nine. Kingman flied out to center. Scott singled to second and stole second while Watanabe was dreaming near the pitcher's box. Wall singled to center scoring Scott, and after Thatch had flied out to Kihara, Sammy Woods Texas Leagued to left driving Wall in. Woods might have added another to the Shanghai total, but he undertook to steal third on the fourth ball of Smith's walk and was caught cold, Uneida to Inaba.

In the eighth, when Shanghai cinched the game, the cups and the series, Bills singled to short and beat it out. Holliday fanned but Uneida dropped the ball and then didn't know what to do with it when he found it. Hopkins and Kingman each beat out hard and fast grounders to Watanabe, Bills scoring on the latter's effort. Scott went safe on a fielder's choice, and Wall rapped one through first base to right, which Nybegawa mishandled badly on the throw to first. Hopkins, Kingman and Scott scored on the misplay, while Wall went on to third. Two easy flyouts by Thatch and Woods ended the inning.

OSAKA PREPARES FOR OLYMPIC GAMES OF 1923

Osaka has begun preparations for the Far Eastern Olympic Games to be held there next May. Some 21,000 tsubo of land have been leased by the municipal athletic committee at Yawataya-machi, in the suburb of the city, where the best stadium in Western Japan will be erected in time for the Oriental meet. The leveling of the ground has been started.

Athletic games are fast becoming popular among the citizens of Osaka and the provisions to be made by the athletic committee on the new ground will be more or less of permanent construction, as the municipality intends to open the new ground as the main athletic field in Osaka after the Oriental Olympic matches are over.

A large track field will be prepared in the center of the stadium and close to which will be erected a special reinforced concrete stand for spectators. It will be large enough to accommodate some 8,000 persons. Many rooms beneath this special-class stand will be used by the sports committee and athletes or rented as shops and restaurants.

One concrete stand for ordinary visitors will be erected on each side of the special stand and each will be capable of accommodating some 10,000 persons.

Most of the seats on the ordinary stands will be provided for school children. A promenade road six feet wide and a moat three feet wide will separate the ordinary stands and the main track field.

Both the swimming tank and the tennis courts will be near the special stand. The tank will be 48 feet wide and 168 feet long. It will be filled with water to a depth of between four and nine feet. It will be strongly built and will be open to primary school children in the following summers.

Grounds suitable for playing baseball, volleyball, basketball, football and other games will be prepared in the main track field. For the convenience of the visitors the municipality will extend the street car service to near the new stadium. Approximately Yen. 240,000 will be spent by the Osaka city toward the preparation of the athletic grounds.

Aero-Surf Boards Rage In Haiwaii

Honolulu, T. H., Aug. 28.—Aerosurfing, Hawaii's newest and most exciting sport, was inaugurated here in the ocean off the army air station at the Pearl Harbor navy yard by leading exponents of surfing and aviators in army flying boats.

The new sport is a combination of surf-boarding and aviation. The boards were towed by the airplanes, the riders standing on the boards and clinging to a single strand of rope while the planes charged through the water at a speed of 45 miles an hour.

Many upsets marked the experiment, most of the spills occurring after the flying boat had attained its fullest speed and when clouds of spray raised by the boats blinded the riders on the board.

Lieutenant R. C. Kirkpatrick, air service, U.S.A. and a pilot on the New York to Alaska flight, piloted the flying boat. Sam and David Kahanamoku, brothers of Duke Kahanamoku, the noted Hawaiian swimmer and considered the most expert manipulators of surf-boards in the islands, were among the riders.

MORE TROUBLE FOR IRELAND

American Leather Handball Champions To Visit Dublin This Summer

Casey's Court over on Dergaw street, Brooklyn, is being manicured and polished. This old handball garage hasn't been insulted by mop or broom since John L. trained there for his losing dance with Jim Corbett.

Reason for sudden monsoon of borax is elimination trials for world handball exposition to be held in Ireland this Summer. Three players will be chosen to defend Brooklyn against all Irish players who survive home rule.

Jim Kelly, present double hemisphere champion, is certain to lead his mob over there, provided he gets leave of absence from New York's traffic squad. Others will be plucked from Burke, Feeney, Brady, Kendall and rest of mob. Names mentioned have best chance.

It is not yet known whether Cincinnati Gymnasium, Los Angeles and Illinois Athletic Clubs and Philopatrian Club of Philadelphia will compete in trials. These are only organisations where dangerous game of leather handball is tolerated with exception of Handball Club of Brooklyn Central, which has six hundred members and is growing wilder every hour.

Rubber ball game has made great leaps in New York in last year. New York A. C. leads with six good courts, which just equals total number of leather ball courts in city. Five of them are in Brooklyn Central while other is historic Casey's with its famous black marble front wall to be looked at only in whispers.

Leather ball is made exactly like baseball. Rubber core, yarn filler and cover made from scalped hide of Russian pony. This combination of material makes wonderful weapon that is good for fractured skull or busted nose on contact.

It possesses remarkable speed that makes it as much superior to rubber ball as billards is to croquet. In fact, it is possible to double rail with it exactly as Bob Cannefax doubles rail in billiards.

This sounds like somebody has been sniffing nose candy, but it's official. Kelly shoots his pet service that bumps up on front wall, caroms to right side wall, then strikes floor near left side wall, bounces off that wall to back wall and back again to left side wall.

Get that? Ball hits side wall, then back wall and back again to same side wall. Actual doubling of rail with ball that is given its English by bare hand.

Mightn't believe it, but then London cricketers didn't believe that Pop Anson's pitchers could curve baseball in air.

CO-OPERATORS DRIFTING INTO POLITICAL ARENA

Manchester.—The steady drift of the British co-operative movement toward the political arena is not viewed by all co-operators with the same equanimity, for there are those who see in this attempt to lead the movement into political action a danger of dividing co-operators against themselves. The danger, point out the opponents of co-operative politics, lies in the existence of varying shades of political opinion within the co-operative movement.

"Then let us remove the danger by teaching the movement the value of unity under one political banner," says the co-operative politician.

To which his opponent replies that such education is unnecessary in view of the fact that whenever the co-operative movement is threatened from without co-operators always are found presenting a united front to the common danger, as, for instance, when, regardless of party, they brought such effective pressure to bear on Parliament that the Government was forced to exempt co-operative societies from the corporation profits tax, which many believed had been aimed specially at the co-operative movement.

NEED FOR CLOSE RELATION

Foremost among the advocates of co-operative political action is T. W. Mercer, chief of the Co-operative Union's Publication Department, and prospective Co-operative candidate for the Moss Side parliamentary division of this city. Expressing his views to a representative of The Christian Science Monitor, Mr. Mercer said:

"In Great Britain there always has been a direct connection between the education given in the great public schools and the policy pursued by Whig and Tory statesmen, and by Liberal and Conservative governments. In reality, Eton, Harrow and Rugby are political kindergarten schools. Oxford and Cambridge are academies wherein those who still govern the country were taught almost all they know of the art of government and the science of politics.

"And this is the opinion of Lord Morley, who said that 'In England the power of the universities and the public schools that feed them. . . . have been the remain agents in molding both our secular and ecclesiastical politics.'

"Co-operators, therefore, need to recognise that as there is a relation between unco-operative education and unco-operative politics there should be an equally close relation between co-operative education and co-operative politics. Teaching separated from action has an academic value only, while the uninstructed politician is a danger to society. If the world is to be governed in the way co-operators desire, those who are to administer and direct affairs of State must study the art of government and the theory of politics in a co-operative school.

POLITICAL MACHINERY USED

"The relation of co-operative education to co-operative politics is exactly the same as its relation to co-operative industry because co-operative aims in politics and in industry are identical. In the realm of politics, co-operators, like other politicians, are obliged to use the machinery of politics. That is why they have found it necessary to organise themselves as a political party. It is, nevertheless, true that co-operators entered politics not to create a new party, but to establish a new idea. As it is the aim of the co-operative movement in industry to promote the practice of truthfulness, justice, and economy in production and exchange, so is it the purpose of the co-operative movement in politics to promote the practice of these ideals in the sphere of national and local government.

"To say, then, that co-operators are organised politically for the purpose of defending their own economic interests is to libel the co-operative movement. If it were true that co-operators proposed to use their political power either to protect their own pockets, or to despoil the present owners of land and capital co-operative educationalists would have to admit that they had accomplished very little. But they have no cause to make any such confession. Co-operators are organised politically because they hope by political action to remove every political obstacle which prevents the further growth and development of co-operation in industry. They have become politicians because they desire to reorganise society on a co-operative basis, for apart from political action co-operators never will be able to reorganise society in the way that they desire.

"While it is true that the ideal society which has been called the 'Co-operative Commonwealth' already exists in the co-operative movement, growing with the growth of co-operative trade and industry, it cannot be established so long as non-co-operators make and administer the laws, for notwithstanding Lord Roseberry's famous saying, the co-operative movement is more than a state within the State, since it is in reality a new form of society seeking liberty to develop in harmony with the laws of its own being. By taking political action, therefore, co-operators are attempting to win a larger freedom and opportunity to continue the work of social reconstruction which they long ago began in the realm of industry.

WONG TURNS GAS ON GAS COMPANY WITH DIRE RESULT

Of late the Shanghai Gas Company has been missing large numbers of pipe elbows, such as are used for guiding the fickle of illuminating material around corners. Some 300 of these detouring agents have vanished during the past two months. Thus when a company official, Mr. Howells, came upon 48 of them strung upon a cord and hidden in close proximity to one of the godown windows he developed suspicions.

Aside from Mr. Howells the only person having access to the elbow parking department of the warehouse was Wong Tsang-sing, whose job it was to sort the piping and stow it away in boxes. Wong was up in the Mixed Court yesterday to make explanation. He protested that it was customary to receive the elbows linked together after the fashion of a bead necklace. The company officials deposed that it was not. Wong said that he had been interrupted while sorting the hardware and had casually kicked the pieces to one side, and that was how they came to have the appearance of being concealed. The complaining witness said that the stuff when he first noticed it was ten yards removed from the spot just abaft the window where it was finally located, so Wong must be considerable casual punter, with a very casually constructed hoof.

Then they led Wong away to an apartment where he can exercise his kickers against metal of a less resilent sort for a fortnight, and no more questions asked.

The Captain Of The Louison

(Translated by William L. McPherson)

...y am I stranded here in ...ance, like an old rowboat ...wand? You want to know, ...? If I hadn't drunk as ... as I have I wouldn't tell ... And I wouldn't tell you ... if you were someone else, because I have to be very prudent, even here."

The cafe proprietor, Borreos, fat and puffy, was sitting opposite me, spreading his arms out on a table sloppy with splotches of one of the red wines of Spain. He had stumbled about closing the shutters of his shop door and then dropped in to the chair there, his eyes wandering and empty with drunkenness and his tongue wagging incessantly.

A SQUALID PLACE

The surroundings were appropriate or melodramatic confidences —wooden tables, stools, a monumental organ bare walls, low ceiling, the cloud of illsmelling smoke which floated over our heads, the yellow light of the three gas jets, the half of a window left open, through which we could see, in the clearness of the night, the Tagus and the dull silhouette of the cathedral.

Borreos continued:

"It is six years, you understand—six years since I came to this city of mud. I didn't come because I liked it here. I had to make a living. I haven't often as good customers as you. But business holds out, all the same. And I prefer being here to going to sea. I used to be a sailor. But wait, I haven't finished my glass."

He swallowed his wine with a gulp.

"MY LIFE OR THEIRS"

"Six years ago the Louison of Rochelle, of which I was captain, was wrecked on the coast of Galicia, near Cape Torinana. You know where that is, don't you? Three small boats put off from the wreck. In mine were Golday, an Englishman; Gabour, another Englishman, and Stradford, a Dane. Three able-bodied seamen, you know. They weighed the boat down. It was night. The boat began to leak. It was my life or theirs, wasn't it? If they stayed, we were all certain to sink. So, you understand, I waited until they well asleep like dogs. And then, without a cry, all three. . . .

He illustrated the drama with gestures. He had killed his three exhausted companions and thrown them overboard.

"It was hard. But I had to do it. It was either they or I. Why not they? I came here. I opened a cafe. Everything was well. I had some money. So had they, that is to say, no—it was I who had the money. And who knows that the captain of the Louison is in Salamanca? Except you? Well, have another glass."

A FALL TO THE FLOOR

He drank off his wine. As for me, I said nothing. A word from me would have exasperated him. He was pale and nervous. He clenched his fists, his eyes were fired. He got up. But he was too drunk to keep his balance. He was scarcely on his feet when he fell to the floor, as stiff as a manikin, and lay there groaning.

I confess that I had no pity for him. It was late. What did it matter if this miserable creature died there? I opened the door and stepped out into the quiet night. Salamanca lay sleeping in the soft shadows, and I felt happy to be alive, as if I had come out of some bloody dream.

Saturday, three days later, was market day. All of Old Castile flocked to the city, which the autumn rains had transformed into a yellowish lake. The houses had taken on the dirty gold color of the earth. The cathedral itself seemed a huge block of mud. On, splashed along in the mire, among bespattered people, with faces as somber and gloomy as the sky. Where could I go to spend the evening? To Borreos's. There, at least, men drank, played games and talked. There I would find a little life.

PROPRIETOR ON DECK.

The proprietor was at his counter, solid and jovial. He shook my hand as if nothing has passed between us.

"Here you are! What can I do for you?"

I installed myself in a corner. Most of the patrons were playing domtnoes, naif osbcured by the smoke of their heavy, acrid Spanish cigarettes. New guests arrived constantly. A tall fellow, with red hair, sat down near me and ordered a glass of malaga. He had a dog with him. He didn't speak to me. But he seemed singularly excited when the big street organ, worked by Borreos, began to grind out dance music.

First there was a waltz, then a slow, melancholy dance, then a music hall air. In the midst of the last piece the tall fellow arose, his glass in his hand. Addressing the company, he said in a loud voice:

"I drink to Louison."

THE ORGAN STOPPED

The organ stopped short. Borreos advanced to the middle of the room.

"Who spoke of Louison?" he cried.

"I did," the man answered.

"What did you mean by that?"

"Nothing. It is my wife's name. I certainly am entitled to drink to her health."

He said all this very naturally, as if he were making some matter of fact explanation.

"All right," Borreos replied; "all right."

He went back to his organ grinding and the players resumed their games. My neighbor continued to drink, keeping his eyes on the dog, who at first lay at her master's feet and later moved about from table to table begging for sugar.

How much time did I spend thus? Nothing kept me there but an obscure presentiment of some strange event, which I couldn't forsee clearly, but which was suggested to me by the atmosphere of the room, by all these men, under the influence of drink and by this strange mixture of music, alcohol and smoke—a mixture which always has a tormenting effect on me. Borreos kept on working the organ. Suddenly my unknown neighbor arose again:

"Louison! Louison!"

The organ stopped. Everybody turned around and looked. Borreos rushed from behind the machine and shouted:

"Who spoke that name?"

THE UNKNOWN WAS CALM

As calmly as before the unknow answered:

"I did."

Borreos came forward, his eyes rolling and his fists clenched.

"Will you tell me what you mean by that?"

"I am calling my dog, who is over there, near you. Don't you see her? There she is. Come here, Louis——"

He hadn't time to finish the word. Borreos was upon the beast. With a kick he sent her rolling to the end of the room. The dog lay there whining.

"Get out!" he said to the man "You hear me—get out!"

The man made no protest. He threw a piece of money on the table, shrugged his shoulders and whistled to the dog, who dragged herself to the door. Then he disappeared.

THEN A WHISPER

Nobody made a move or raised a voice. Borreos, shivering, stared into vacancy. From outside a whisper came, like a breath upon the silence:

"Louison! Louison!"

The next morning, as I left my house, I met a frequenter of the cafe, who asked me mysteriously:

"Have you heard the news?"

"No," I replied.

"They found Borreos dead under his counter. He was strangled."

A Special Realart Picture! Some Fair Amusement!!

The Story of a Modern Flapper and an Old fashioned Girl and their two Sweetearts!!

"Don't Call Me Little Girl"

with charming, vivacious

MARY MILES MINTER

The contrast between the old-fashioned girl and Miss 1922, their methods of hunting down a husband, always an interesting comparison, is the revolving point of this fast whirling romance. "DON'T CALL ME LITTLE GIRL."

A vivacious heroine smartly interpreted by Mary Minter trips on a miscalculated romance of a maiden aunt, falls in love with the hitherto-reluctant bridegroom herself and shapes the destinies of four love-sick misfits, including herself after no end of embarassing mistakes.

The Story is old fashioned and modern by turns. There is some excellent comedy and a never-flagging pep that brings the interest to a pitch and keeps it there.

"Don't Call Me Little Girl"

may be set down as one of the best productions in which MARY MILES MINTER HAS YET APPEARED.

Mokanshan May Employ 'Manager' For Community

(China Press Correspondence)

Mokanshan, August 28.—Weather conditions at Mokansan this year have been as nearly ideal as could be expected in a land of typhoons and thunder storms. So far only two light typhoons have wandered this way, and no more rain than is needed to keep the springs in good running order. The health on the mountain has been good, one cholera case being the only serious exception.

Supervision of miles of mountain roads, sanitation for several hundred houses, water supply and provisions for recreation all require much time and thought so that one of the problems which the Mokanshan community faces is that of getting a manager who shall take over these responsibilities.

The employing of such manager will entail at least a doubling of the taxes, and probably a substantial increase in recreation fees. While the community is reluctant to increase the cost of living on this beautiful mountain top yet it seems that the time has come when paid supervision must be provided if facilities on the hill are to be kept up as they should.

During the summer there has been a weekly musical entertainment, and a weekly Children's Hour; recreation has been provided for all children between the ages of Kindergarten and sixteen in the form of weekly picnics, nature study classes, home industry classes, and athletics. The Camp-fire girls have carried on a vigorous program under the able leadership of Miss Droze. Unfortunately, a Scout Master could not be found for the older boys and they were left with only tennis, swimming, hikes, and camping parties to fill up their leisure hours. A pageant, a Sunday School picnic, a Stunt Night, and the big annual concert were the outstanding community features of the year.

The walls of the new assembly hall are up to the roof and there is every assurance that it will be ready for use next season. About $1,700 in cash has been raised for the hall this year, and $5,000 in debentures were taken up almost as soon as announced. This assembly hall will house the Kindergarten and library, provide a central meeting place for the boy's and girl's clubs, as well as be an auditorium for the community entertainments, lectures, and religious services.

Six hundred dollars toward the work of the Chinese Student Volunteer Movement and more than four hundred and fifty dollars for Swatow Relief have been raised on the hill.

Permanent community improvements are contemplated for next year, most important of which is the building of two cisterns for the conservation of the spring water.

Spot and Forward Bar Silver were each down ⅛d in London yesterday. The New York price declined to 69⅝ cents and the London-New York cross rate to 445¾. The only change in our Official rates here today were a drop in the Gold Dollar rate to 77 and in the Franc rate to 1010.

Our market throughout the morning was steady, some business in Sterling being done at 3-5⅝ for near delivery and 3-5 11-16 for forward. Gold Dollars were done at 77½ for near and 77⅝ for forward deliveries.

At the Tiffin interval there were both buyers and sellers at these rates with, however, buyers predominating.

In the early part of the afternoon the market was perhaps a shade easier, business in forward Sterling being done as low as 3s. 5⅝d., and in Gold Dollars at 77⅞. However just before the close the market steadied up again slightly with good sellers at these quotations.

The market as a whole was very quiet, there being little commercial business and speculators disinclined to operate on a large scale. Banks were quoting 3-6⅛ for Sterling Bills, 79 for Gold Dollar Bills and 1050 for Franc Bills.

The Continent sold a small amount of silver in London yesterday and the market is reported as steady. New York quotes the market as firm with buyers at the official rates.

Szechuen Armies Suing For Peace

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 26.—The defeated Second Army in Szechuen, greatly depleted in numbers, have retired north of the Yangtsze in the neighborhood of the Hupeh-Szechuen border, leaving 2,000 of their number at Wushanhsien.

General Sun Chuan-fang's reinforcements, comprising two divisions and two brigades, are at Patunghsien awaiting the arrival of General Sun who is delayed by illness at Ichang.

General Yang Hsiang, commander of the Second Army, is reported to have returned from Ichang to Patunghsien. The commanders of the First and Third Armies are meanwhile negotiating with General Sun for peace.

Decline Of Mark Hits Leipzig Fair

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, August 28.—There is a better attendance at the Leipzig Fair than last year but manufacturers are showing little eagerness to book orders, the textile trade declining to deal with new customers. As a consequence of the depreciation of the mark all prices have been fixed in gold marks and German buyers are protesting against this.

Prices are exorbitantly high. As an example the equivalent of 1,200 paper marks is asked for a plain cotton shirt and a silk tie but ready buyers are found.

Greeks And Turks Resume Fighting

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 28.—A resumption of military operations in Asia Minor is definitely indicated by a telegram from Reuter's correspondent at Athens who gives an official communique declaring that fighting has been proceeding continuously from the river Akar to Hassacbei during the past three days and estimating that the Kemalist forces consist of ten divisions, well-equipped with artillery and munitions.

Reuter's correspondent at Constantinople expresses the opinion that the immediate objective of the Kemalists is to capture the railways and thus isolate the Greek bases at Smyrna and Brussa.

Rebels Active In Northern Mexico

(Reuter's Service)

San Antonio, Texas, August 28. Further trouble in Mexico is anticipated owing to the fact that General Murgia, with a band of officers including a son-in-law of the late President Carranza, yesterday crossed the Rio Grande to Mexico, where they met a band of 500 revolutionists.

Another band, co-operating with General Murgia, crossed near Laredo for the purpose of overthrowing President Obregon.

It is believed that General Murgia is heading for Tampico.

Gold Mining Boom In Belgian Congo

(China Press Service)

Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, Aug 28.—Gold and diamond mining has greatly increased in the Belgian Congo since the Armistice, and in May 1922 it reached the highest point ever known in the history of the colony. The steamer Anversville left for Antwerp recently carrying 1,100 pounds of gold bullion and several million francs worth of diamonds.

Cotton growing for the current year has been so successful that two new mechanical shelling shops have been installed. The necessary machinery was bought in Worcester, Mass.

Commerce in general has profited greatly by the reduction in wages. Owing to the economic crisis which obtained throughout 1921 the negro workers are now accepting a diminution of 25 to 33 percent from the wages which were paid them during the war and in 1919 and 1920.

America's Foreign Trade

AMERICA'S foreign trade for the fiscal year ended June 30 resulted in a favorable trade balance of $1,162,000,000, which was a decline of nearly $2,000,000,000 from the favorable balance of the previous year, according to reports issued today by the Commerce Department.

Exports during the fiscal year just closed aggregated $3,770,000,000 and imports $2,608,000,000 as compared with exports of $6,516,000,000 and imports of $3,654,000,000 for the previous fiscal year.

Although exports for the fiscal year 1922 fell off by nearly $3,000,000,000 compared with the previous year, they showed an increase of nearly $1,500,000,000 compared with the fiscal year 1914, and imports for the past year which declined by more than $1,000,000,000 compared with 1921 resulted in an increase of $700,000,000 over 1914.

Exports for June were the highest since October, 1921, when the total was $343,000,000 while imports for June were the highest since December, 1920, when the total was $266,000,000.

Imports of gold for the fiscal year, 1922, aggregated $468,000,000, a decrease of $170,000,000 compared with the previous year, while exports were $27,000,000, a decline of $106,000,000 from the 1921 total. Gold imports for June were $13,000,000, compared with $43,000,000 in June a year ago, while exports for the month aggregated $1,600,000, compared with $773,000 in June, 1921.

Silver imports for June were $6,345,000 compared with $3,627,000 in June a year ago, while exports of silver for the month totaled $6,000,000 compared with $1,424,000 during the same month a year ago.

The Canadian Position

BY P. W. WILSON

No one travelling as "I am through the towns and villages of Canada can long remain under any illusion as to the circumstances which have led to the visit of Mr. Mackenzie King, the Premier, to Washington. That visit is doubtless a gesture, but it is one of those gestures which point to something more substantial in the not very distant future.

Before the recent election in the Dominion the Prime Minister, as leader of the Opposition, waved the flag of Canada a nation, and severely criticised Mr. Meighan, his rival and predecessor, who had sent Sir Robert Borden to the Washington conference not as an independent delegate with a distinct mission for Canada, but as one among the other British delegates, all voting in unison. Like Smuts of South Africa, King thought that each dominion should have had a separate invitation from Secretary Hughes and that at Washington, as on the League of Nations, there should have been six British votes instead of one vote to include six British dominions.

By visiting President Harding Mr. King thus asserts the full diplomatic status of Canada as he understands it. His gesture is the more dramatic because Sir Auckland Geddes, who represents Great Britain at Washington, happens to be on the other side of the Atlantic. Hence the significance of the suggested negotiations of the well-tried Rush-Bagot agreement limiting armaments on the Canadian border. This instrument has survived a century of troublous change, and no one seriously believes that it is endangered either by tariffs, immigration or the smuggling of liquor. The agreement was, however, signed by the United States not with Canada, but with Great Britain, and what Mr. King wants is a treaty directly negotiated by the Dominion without the assistance of the Foreign Office in London.

Such a treaty would constitute an important precedent for further discussions of reciprocity and development of transit and water power along the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes.

The population of the Dominion has grown beyond a negligible 5,000,000. It is 9,000,000, and in ten years, which included the war, it has increased by 1,500,000 persons. Kipling's conception of Canada as "our lady of the snows," always disputed by Canadians themselves, becomes every day more misleading. The French farmer, as he rears his devout family of fifteen children, and yet finds funds to enrich his village church until every niche and pillar is deep carved and gilded, is very far from deeming Quebec to be merely a frostbitten fringe of the Arctic regions. Canada is to him the last that remains in this world of old France, with the true faith, the ancient seignorial customs, fleur-de-lys, ever honored in the heraldic emblems of the Dominion. The modern Ontario claims that she has precious metals, especially gold, in an abundance far surpassing the treasures of the South African Rand, now under process of depletion, while the Canadian harvest is likely to be this year a bumper.

Canada thus boasts an increasing economic importance, as buyer and as seller. She wishes to trade with others, and her market is worth having. The disposal of that market is, at the moment, a supreme issue in Canadian politics. Broadly, the question is whether trade is to be developed with the United States or the United Kingdom. And the following figures for the year 1921 show what a volume of commerce is at stake:

United States, United Kingdom.
Canadian Exports—
$542,000,000 $313,000,000
Canadian Imports—
$856,000,000 $214,000,000

Canada thus imports from the United States four times as much as she imports from the United Kingdom; while she exports to the United States nearly twice as much as she exports to the United Kingdom. She is in the position of a country where political and commercial affiliations do not correspond. Her trade does not follow, in the main, her flag. Politically, Canada is British; commercially, she is American. It is said that citizens of the United States hold one-third of the capital invested in the industrial enterprises of the Dominion.

The engineers of the Canadian Pacific Railway realised that if the Dominion was to hold together at all there must be transcontinental communications, running east and west. But these great routes, from ocean to ocean, are tapped along their whole length by the pull of traffic—freight and passenger—north and south. Despite every effort to the contrary, Canada tends to fall into three divisions—Quebec to the east; the farming areas to the west and Ontario, the Gibraltar of the British connection, as a link between them. Every Canadian Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King included, must drive three horses abreast. Let him lose control of that team, and there must be at once a dissolution of Parliament and a general election.

Visiting Ottawa, one realises at once that Mr. Meighan, who succeeded Sir Robert Borden as fusion Prime Minister, now leads a beaten party. By themselves the Conservatives of Ontario are not formidable. But they are united and hostile to the Government. Mr. Meighan, keen faced as Joseph Chamberlain, is what Sir Lomer Gouin of Quebec calls "a bad loser." Every day and all day he fights his enemies, the Liberals, and in the Senate he has a majority of Second Chamber statesmen, appointed—some of them ominously young—for life. Mackenzie King knows that if his forces should be divided on any vote Meighan will show little mercy. Twice in the session just concluded has the Government approached the precipice of defeat. And it is on the United States that its continuance in power may be found to depend.

For the House of Commons at Ottawa is divided, like the Dominion, roughly into three parts. Of these, I have mentioned the Conservatives from Ontario. Secondly, we have the Liberals, chiefly from Quebec, whom the Prime Minister leads. And, thirdly, there are the Progressives or United Farmers, chiefly from the West, who are led by Mr. Crerar. Like the British Labor Party, the Progressives sit in opposition, but their support—or at least their acquiescence—is necessary to Mr. King if he is to remain in power.

Between the Progressives and the Liberals there is a certain undeniable solidarity. It was upon these two forces, then coalesced, that Sir Wilfrid Laurier depended for his long term of office. But today the two wings are apt to be far apart. The Progressives represent what Congress at Washington has found to be a formidable force—namely, the farmers' bloc. You have here the Canadian substitute for that revolt which in the Dakotas took the form of the Non-Partisan League. The Progressive argues that the farmer has not had a fair deal. The Liberals, says he, are run by the City of Montreal, while the Conservatives are run by the City of Toronto. Neither of these cities understands agriculture. The Progressive, therefore, demands two things—first, free trade, and, second, public ownership. These, at any rate, are the essentials of the economic program and the rest is machinery, like redistribution of seats which will help the West and proportional representation.

Left to himself, Mackenzie King would welcome both public ownership of many public services and free trade. No one knows better than he the tragic waste of Canadian timbers, through fire and ruthless exploitation. No one has studied with greater attention the regretable emergence in the Cities of Toronto and Montreal of those housing and other social problems which are so acute in European towns. Mackenzie King is at heart more Progressive than Liberal, but he is at the moment dependent upon Quebec, and Quebec, though Liberal in name, is Conservative in fact. Sir Lomer Gouin, solid in build, once Premier of Quebec and now Mackenzie King's left-hand man, exercises a constant and unchallengeable veto. He will allow lower railway rates to be thrown as a sop to the Progressives, but that is all. Virtually, the tariff stands.

For Mackenzie King, Quebec is thus the kind of anchorage that the solid South was to President Wilson. Just as Mr. Wilson denounced certain prejudices in Georgia, so it is ridiculous to suppose that Mr. King, a Presbyterian and Protestant, can approve of the divided citizenship to which Canada is condemned by her duality of language and of schools. The idealist does not always mean the same thing as the multitudes who support him. Between the Progressives of the West, with their candid talk about class consciousness, and the Liberal Catholics of the East, living in areas where the movie has never been admitted, there is no unity of race, of religion or of language. What Mackenzie King desires is, at least, some unity of economics. But here, as in all else, Sir Lomer Gouin acts as "the master of the Government," to quote the bitter phrase attributed to Mr. Meighan.

Gouin is, of course, much more than the reactionary tool of ecclesiastical extremists. Montreal, with a population of more than 1,000,000, is now the fifth of all North American cities. In size it is surpassed by only New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Detroit. It has, I suppose, the most spacious emporium for jewelry in the world. Its banks wield an enormous authority. In Montreal, Quebec touches the modern world. And at the point of contact you find Gouin, Catholic yet non-clerical, French yet financial, Canadian yet cosmopolitan. Gouin will have free trade, but only on terms; and on no terms, so it seems, will he readily accept public ownership. He is the obstacle to union between Mackenzie King and the Progressives.

For twenty years it has been clear that Quebec can be carried, not, indeed, for free trade as such, but for reciprocity with the United States, which reciprocity would be welcomed also by the Western farmers of the Progressive Party. In reciprocity, therefore, Mackenzie King, like his predecessor and political godfather, Sir Wilfred Laurier, is seeking the common denominator which will enable him to win the Progressives without losing the Liberals and so secure an absolute majority in the House of Commons over the Conservatives. This is, apparently, the main purpose of Mackenzie King's visit to Washington, as it was the purpose some months ago of the more private visit paid by his Finance Minister, Mr. Fielding, who was once his rival, but is now his nestor.

From the standpoint of the Canadian Government, therefore it has been, to say the least, an unfortunate coincidence that at the very moment when Liberalism in the Dominion was returned to office (if not to complete power), with ideas of closer commercial relations with the United States there should be proposed at Washington so severe a tariff as that associated with the name of Mr. Fordney. This tariff has aroused animosity throughout all three areas of the Dominion—Western, Ontario and Quebec—and the free trade Progressives themselves are for the time being helpless. In England the complete Cobdenite has "fought tariffs by free imports" and with no little success, but reasoning so subtle as this has not appealed as yet to the mind of Canada, where there is no inclination at all to turn the other cheek to the fiscal smiter. What Canada desires is blow for blow, and pending the counter-attack she meditates grimly on the conviction that the Fordney tariff has injured American imports into the Dominion more than Canadian exports, and that the Middle West cannot mix flour, either for home or foreign markets, without including Canadian wheat, on which a duty of 30 cents a bushel is to be charged. The Dominion Parliament has been, of course prorogued, and until next year it is a case with Canada of marking time. When next year comes a new Congress will have been elected and the Middle West may have discovered by experience whether a sacrifice of Canadian trade makes for profit and employment.

The Conservatives at Ottawa are pursuing a policy of "watchful waiting." They dislike reciprocity. The flag that they wave is not the Stars and Stripes but the Union Jack. The trade that they want is not American but British trade. They would fight the Fordney tariff by higher duties against the United States and a bigger preference in favor of the mother country. The commerce which left to itself naturally flows north and south, they divert once more east and west.

Across this situation has fallen the issue challenged by President Harding's proposal for the negotiation of a treaty opening up the River St. Lawrence for ocean going traffic and water power. This proposal was made, perhaps intentionally, in a form that could not have been acceptable to the Dominion. It was not only the opposition of Sir Lomer Gouin on behalf of Montreal that led to the rejection of these overtures. Canada would not have agreed publicly, here and now, to the principle of a treaty so vitally affecting her sovereignty. The first step, surely, must be to discuss without prejudice the report of the International Joint Commission, just issued.

According to the Canadian estimate of the scheme, there is here a genuine impulse in the middle west to break loose from the power of New York as the gateway of the United States. What New York thinks of it is not a Canadian concern, but many Canadians do consider that no obstruction to the full use of the St. Lawrence should come from the Dominion. The middle west in Canada is also interested in the scheme, and for the same reasons, generally, as the American Middle West. The project is thus not to be dismissed as dead. There are great difficulties, financial as well as political, but the case is as much as ever on the table for discussion.

That there are other questions ripe for consideration is obvious. Prohibition, as administered in the United States and in Ontario, has filled the Treasury of Quebec. The Fishermen's Treaty, which was in force on the maritime regions bordering the Atlantic, has been suddenly denounced by Secretary Hughes. And the future of immigration confronts both countries. Canada has not yet sent an Ambassador of her own to Washington; having won her right to do so, she is the less anxious to exercise it. But the Prime Minister's presence at the capital of the United States cannot fail to resolve many doubts over matters, some of them of far reaching importance.

RELATIVITY

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir,—Mr Schnore now drops his own case and takes me up on an entirely different point. I will try to make it clear to him.

The term velocity signifies nothing unless referred to some standard. Before you can attach any meaning to a particular velocity you must specify your body of reference. An aeroplane is flying with the wind. Its speed indicator registers 60 m.p.h. but the velocity of the wind is 20 m.p.h. and therefore, to an observer below, the aeroplane appears to be travelling at 80 m.p.h. Which is the true velocity, 60 or 80 miles per hour? Will Mr. Schnore explain?

So with the bullet. Being concerned only to contradict Nosuch Fish's assertion that it would remain at the muzzle of the rifle, I naturally chose the rifle as my reference-body. Mr. Schnore prefers the railway track, or rather the earth. Someone else may choose the sun as his standard, another the fixed stars and, since all these bodies are in relative motion, each will obtain a different value for the velocity of the bullet.

Who is right? The question does not admit of an answer. There is no reason why any of these bodies should be chosen in preference to any other, since none of them can claim to be in the unique state of absolute rest. For a time it was hoped that the ether of space would furnish the required absolute standard but it failed to do so. Einstein then enunciated his doctrine of relativity which teaches that it is impossible by any experiment or observation to detect absolute motion through space, that in fact absolute motion is an abstraction without objective counterpart. In physical investigations you may choose any number of bodies of reference possessing any kind of motion whatever, and the laws of nature you formulate, if true, must be true of all of them.

Yours faithfully,
S. S.

THAT BULLET

Editor: THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: I beg your indulgence for intruding in your columns again, but our friends S. S. and P. Schnore are losing sight of the fact that the front end of the train is moving away from that bullet at a velocity of 1,000 feet per second, while the rifle on the rear end of the train is chasing it at the same velocity.

2. Did that bullet ever catch the front end?

3. Did the rifle at the rear ever catch the bullet?

4. Why should a bullet, fired to the rear, fall vertically to the ground?

Yours faithfully,
NOSUCH FISH.

-:- Falling Stars -:-

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
(Eminent Astronomer And Authority On Subjects Of Scientific Interest)

"Why do stars in falling always go down if there is no gravity in space?—W. R."

There seem to be two fundamental misconceptions underlying this question, the first of which at least is very widely entertained. The first misconception is that "stars fall," and the second is that anybody supposes that there is "no gravity in space." Einstein, it is true, has suggested a new way of regarding gravitation (a way that practically concerns only professional mathematicians), but this only makes gravitation a property of space itself, a result of an inherent 'curvature' occurring in the neighborhood of massive bodies and affecting their relative motions.

Unless you are a mathematician it is idle to try to understand Einstein's theories, and the Alice-in-Wonderland paradoxes offered as explanations of them simply fool the reader with the false impression that he has learned something.

Let me try once more to dissipate the old, old notion, which it seems impossible to beat out of many persons' heads, that there are such things as "falling stars" or "shooting stars," in the literal sense of those terms. Of course, there are phenomena frequently seen in the night sky which we are in the habit of speaking of as falling or shooting stars, but these fiery objects darting through the heavens have no more to do with stars than lightning bugs have to do with lightning. We give those names to them simply because of an accidental resemblance.

A "falling star" or "shooting star" is merely an object known to astronomers as a meteor, or, when it is very large and brilliant, as a fireball or meteorite. The visibility of these phenomena is confined to the shell of atmosphere which envelops the earth, and which is not more than a hundred miles or so in effective height or thickness. The largest of those objects ever seen to fall upon the earth have not exceeded a few hundred pounds in weight, and there are very few that exceed five or ten pounds, while the vast majority are mere grains of stone or of metal (usually iron). Their momentary light as they rush through the atmosphere is due to the heat produced by friction with the air.

Now, in contrast to this, consider what a star is. A star is a distant sun, and most of those visible to the naked eye are suns much greater than our sun. It is their enormous distance that causes them to appear as mere twinkling points. A star could not fall to the earth. If there was any falling in the case it would be the earth that would fall upon the star, and be burnt up in a twinkling. But the earth would have to fall twenty-five trillions of miles to reach the nearest star in the sky.

This brings us to the second branch of the question, that relating to gravitation in space. Of course there is gravitation in space—i. e., the force, or effect, that we call gravitation extends across the intervening space that separates different bodies, no matter how wide that space may be. But the intensity of the force, which acts like an attraction, falls off as the distance increases, and it falls off faster than the distance increases; so much faster that if the distance is doubled the force is divided by four and if the distance is trebled the force is divided by nine, and so on.

This relation between the force and the distance is known as "the law of the inverse squares," for the facts are all covered by the statement that the force varies inversely as the square of the distance. If the distance is halved the force is quadrupled, four being the inverse square of one half, and if the distance is doubled the force is reduced to one-quarter, one-quarter being the inverse square of two. Everybody ought to know this as well as he knows that twice two are four. The same law applies to light and heat and other forms of radiation, a fact which may be taken as hinting that whatever, precisely, gravitation may be, at any rate it is some expression of radiant energy.

And just as light extends everywhere through space, so gravitation extends. Bodies that are near one another, like a sun with its planets, exhibit the force of gravitation in a conspicuous manner, and the smaller bodies are compelled to follow orbital paths around the larger ones. But when the distance becomes very great, as in the case of the space separating the sun from the other stars, or most of the stars, from one another, the effects of gravitation are greatly reduced, and may become so small, as far as distantly separated bodies are concerned, that it is almost, or quite, unnoticeable to us on the earth.

Now, what is meant by falling? It is the motion under gravitation of a relatively small body toward the center of gravity of a relatively large one. Bodies near the earth fall toward the earth's center; bodies near the moon fall toward the moon's center; bodies close to the sun fall into the sun. In fact, even the motion of a planet in its orbit is a kind of fall toward the sun turned by cross-motion into a revolution around it.

Tooting His Own Horn Nets Him $800,000

Isham Jones

"BLOW your own horn, sonny, and blow it hard," was the advice given Isham Jones twelve years ago by the richest man in Adrian, Mich. Today Jones owns a palatial home, a fleet of automobiles and a huge bank account. "I blew my horn," he says, explaining that his horn is a saxaphone. He is the highest-paid jazz leader in America, and phonograph companies are clamoring for his records. In five years he has earned $800,000. "I'm going to get a million and quit," he declares.

Japanese Government Deaf To Requests Of Vladivostok Envoys

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, August 26.—A Vladivostok despatch says that M. Androvsky, Mayor of Vladivostok, accompanied by two other persons left there for Japan on August 23 as special envoys of the Vladivostok Government and that prior to their departure they declared they contemplated negotiating with the Japanese Government as to the transfer of confiscated arms, the postponement of the withdrawal of the Japanese troops from Siberia and the loan question.

In this connection, the Japanese Government, as the result of a Cabinet council, has decided not to comply with the requests. With regard to the transfer of the confiscated arms the Japanese Government has decided to reject the envoys' request lest internal disturbances be created in Russia.

It has been further decided that a loan should not be made to the Vladivostok Government and that the petition for the prolongation of the withdrawal of Japanese troops should be rejected.

Chang Tso-lin In Row With Tuchun

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 28.—According to reports from Mukden strained relations exist between General Chang Tso-lin and Tuchun Wu Cheng-sheng of Heilungkiang. The latter is a native of Honan and the Chinese naively state he is a man of good family without much in common with General Chang Tso-lin.

Since the Chihli war General Chang has sought an excuse for getting rid of General Wu and the recent mundy on the Chinese Eastern Railway has given him a chance of which he is making the most.

General Wu, however, seems inclined to resist and now there are persistent rumors that he will declare Heilungkiang independent as far as Fengtien is concerned if General Chang proceeds to extremes, subsequently bringing the province back to the Central fold.

The situation is described as being so intense that important developments may occur at any time.

Weather Report

28.—The minimum reported, not very deep, approaches the coast in the evening by the N. of Wenchow. A new and large typhoon follows, to the SE of the Loochoos, travelling NW ward, threatening these Islands and the Eastern Sea. Cyclonic circulation, moderate over the Eastern Sea, heavier to the SE of the Loochoos. Variable breezes in the N. Extremely damp weather, all day long, with heavy showers at times. Rain in Kwangtung, and in S. Formosa.

29.—Very damp weather. Rather steady pressure. Very light ESEly breezes.

SICK LEAVE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 26.—Mr. Li Kuo-chun, President of the Economic Bureau, has been granted extension of leave for one month, owing to illness in his family.

Mr. Jao Hang-hsiang, Director of the Labor and Emigration Bureau, has been granted leave for five days.

STRIKING MINERS HAVE MANY WAYS OF CARRYING ON

Some Depend On Children, Others Return To Old Country

(Chung Mei Service)

Washington, August 8.—Labor Department officials, in discussing the coal strike and its various phases, ask: "Why is it that a national strike can run for weeks without necessitating the payment of one cent of relief money, whereas after a local strike has gone on but two weeks, relief payments are begun?"

Then they proceed to answer the question themselves, as follows:

The original coal miners in the United States hail from the British Isles. This class, comprising mainly the Scotch, Welsh and Irish, hold an inherent antipathy against putting their children to work in the mines. So at an early age, their offspring are rushed through night school and business college and bundled off to the cities to engage in "white collar" employment.

Then when a strike in the coal mines comes along, regular remittances are received from the city which keep father and the family running until he returns to work. This disposition is true also of Scandinavians. That for one element in the American coal mines.

The original miner of British descent, however, is being superceded rapidly by the Italian immigrant. This type employs an entirely different method of protecting himself against strike conditions. The Italian feathers his nest well, but he locates his nest in sunny Italy.

All of his spare money, which incidentally is the greater part of his earnings, go home to his native country. Then, when the unions order that he lay down his pick and shovel, he embarks on the first boat for Italy leaving word that he be notified when an agreement is reached.

Literally thousands of this class have left the country since the beginning of the present strike. They are in no danger of running afoul of the immigration laws as they are, for the most part, naturalised citizens.

For the remainder of the nationalities working in the mines, the present boom for good roads in the United States has proven most beneficial. Reports to the Department of Labor indicate that great numbers of the striking miners in Pennsylvania, and also in other states, are working on the highway. While the pay is not quite so much, working conditions are much more favorable and there are six days instead of five to a working week.

NEW AERO STATION

(China Press Service)

London, Aug. 28. — The Air Ministry is about to carry out experiments for establishing an air station on the Thames, and test flights soon will begin. The new station probably will be near the House of Parliament and when in use will save the journey by motor car to Croydon aerodrome, thus shortening by an hour the journey by plane from London to Paris.

The Ministry also has approved a scheme for an air service between Southampton and the French ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre. The main object of this plan is to shorten the cross-Atlantic journey by picking up passengers from Cherbourg, conveying them rapidly by air to Southampton, and thence onwards to London by train.
